Academic Development & Training for International Students

ADTIS is more than just language. We work at the point where academic, communication and language skills intersect. The focus of what we do is far more on developing and refining discipline-specific academic literacy. Given Cambridge's high English language entrance requirements, the difficulties that international students tend to face are less to do with the language itself than with the culturally-informed conventions of how (academic) English is used. It is an understanding of this which underpins our entire provision.
